Sixty-two per cent fiction. An increase of 8,428 in circulation over last year.

Mrs. Ida A. Kidder resigned as librarian July 1, 1908, and Miss Elizabeth Topping, of the high school, acted as substitute until August 15, when Miss Essie M. Culver, of Phoenix, Arizona, came to us from the New York Library School at Albany, N. Y. Miss Culver has given us very satisfactory work.

The card catalog is complete up to date.

We received a better appropriation from the city council this year and were enabled to open the library, since January 1, ten hours daily, instead of six, as heretofore. We now open the library at 10 a. m. and close at 9 p. m., except during the supper hour, from 6 to 7, when the library is closed. On account of the increase in library hours we have employed an assistant, Miss Mary Jameson, of the Willamette University.

The official term of trustees—Mrs. A. N. Bush, Mrs. Russell Catlin—and the president expire at this meeting and upon you devolves the election of their successors.

The library board, through Mrs. W. H. Eldridge, as trustee, has secured an option on the E. M. Walte property, corner of State and Winter streets, for $6,000. This sum has nearly all been subscribed, so we are confident of securing the same. The lot is considered one of the very best available sites to be found in the residence portion of the city. We thank everyone who has aided us financially in this enterprise. We also extend thanks to the individual members of the library board and Woman's club for assistance rendered and especially are we indebted to Mrs. W. H. Eldridge, who secured half of the total amount.

We also wish to thank donors of books and periodicals, and the city papers for space and the files of their newspapers during the past year.

I am indebted to the members of the library board for their hearty cooperation.

C. L. BRISTOL-KELLIHER,
President.

IDEAL FARMING

out of business, to take down all the roadside, fence and tree advertising he has put up when in business.

At Albany we met the new salaried booster, Wallace R. Struble, of Raymond, Wash., recently. He is a nephew of former Congressman Ike Struble, of Lemars, Iowa, but has been on the Pacific coast for some years. He has written some fine poems, one on the Columbia, almost as good as Cam Simpson's Willamette.

The most beautiful region of all that we saw on the eighty-mile trip was coming in of Salem from Prospect hill, ten miles south, through the Rosedale and Liberty prune regions. The Red hills seem to impart a thrifty appearance to the orchards and give them a glossy exuberance of foliage not seen anywhere. The perfectly macadamized roads, the trickling springs and running streams, the grand scenery, well-painted houses, barns and fruit driers, all unite to make an impression of great resources, wealth, health and comfort.

To drive over an eighty-mile circle around the Willamette valley gives one an impression of its extent and undeveloped condition. From Lebanon one could have taken another circle of 80 to 100 miles, via Brownsville, Eugene, Monroe, Corvallis and back. Three other one hundred-mile circles can be driven from Salem. One to Independence, Saver, Lewisburg, Peedee, Willamina, Sheridan, McCoy and back; one to McMinville, Forest Grove, Hillsboro, Sherwood, Newberg, Dayton and back; another to Silverton, Mt. Angel, Willott, Mackburg, Gresham, Milwaukie, Oregon City, Aurora, St. Paul, Gervais and back. None of these circles will touch each other and you will have traveled five hundred miles in the Willamette valley and then not have seen over half of it. The valleys that run into it along all the streams are themselves as large as the main valley—such as the two Luckiamutes, the Abiqua, the Mollala, the valleys of the Yamhill, the Clackamas, the three forks of the Santiam, Thomas creek, the Callpooia, the McKenzie, the forks of the Willamette, the Mary, etc., etc. Up these tributary valleys the soil is richer, the foothills grow better fruit, water powers are more abundant, the climate is healthier, the forest and mineral wealth is incalculable.

Great is the Willamette valley and its resources. It has been said it will support a population of three million people. I believe it would hold five million, and their feet would not stick out from under the bed-covers anywhere.
